Crist Addresses Economic Development Conference InSite Principal Addresses Vail Gathering of Experts

GREENVILLE, SC – April 23, 2008 – Tonya Crist, principal with Upstate-headquartered site selection and economic development consulting firm InSite Consulting LLC, was a featured speaker at the recent Expansion Management Magazine “Roundtable in the Rockies” forum in Vail, Colorado.

Ms. Crist’s presentation focused on “The Site Selection Process – How Communities Can Become Impact Players”. Her program centered on such areas as community readiness for economic development, product development, marketing strategies, key site selection location factors, and working effectively with site selection consultants.

The annual program was attended by more than 200 economic developers, government leaders, utility executives, and interested private sector parties from across the United States.

Ms. Crist’s invitation to the exclusive gathering further validates Upstate-based InSite Consulting’s status as one of the fastest-growing and in-demand site selection and economic development consultancies in the country.

InSite Consulting LLC is the strategic site selection partner of choice to Fluor Global Location Strategies Group, providing a comprehensive array of site selection and economic development consulting services to Fluor clients around the globe. InSite provides services in site selection, economic development consulting and training, and real estate. Co-founded in 2004 by Principals Rob Cornwell and Tonya Crist, InSite principals have sited in excess of $10 billion worth of facilities for some of the world’s best-known companies, including Caterpillar, Shell Oil, Mercedes Benz, Procter & Gamble, Borg-Warner and Black & Decker.
